STRABAG CONSTRUCTS STEEL PLANT IN RUSSIA FOR €300 MILLION

- Steel production and rolling mill to be built 200 km south of Moscow
- Scheduled construction time: 36 months

Vienna, 14 July 2014 Publicly listed construction group STRABAG SE has been contracted by Russia's Tula-Steel Company to build a steel production and rolling mill in Tula, some 200 km south of Moscow. The industrial complex will be constructed in close vicinity to Tulachermet's existing iron mill. The contract value is €300 million. Construction of the project will begin in autumn 2014 and is expected to be completed within 36 months.

"Over the past few years, STRABAG has built steel mills of similar dimensions and complexity. This new contract highlights our excellence in the construction of industrial plants," said STRABAG SE CEO Thomas Birtel, whose role on the executive board includes responsibility for the Russian market.

Under the terms of the contract, STRABAG agreed to construct turnkey production halls and an administrative building, to set up the production facilities, to create a railway link, access roads, outdoor installations including all supply and disposal facilities, and to install the production facilities – as provided by the client – of the converter-based steel plant with with a connected continuous billet blaster and two refined iron rolling mills. The steel plant will be designed for an annual production capacity of 1.5 million tons of refined steel, steel rods and wire.

STRABAG SE is a European-based technology group for construction services, a leader in innovation and financial strength. Our services span all areas of the construction industry and cover the entire construction value chain. We create added value for our clients by our specialised entities integrating the most diverse services and assuming responsibility for them. We bring together people, materials and machinery at the right place and at the right time in order to realise even the most complex construction projects – on schedule, of the highest quality and at the best price. The hard work and dedication of our more than 73,000 employees allows us to generate an annual output volume of about € 14 billion. At the same time, a dense network of numerous subsidiaries in many European countries and, increasingly, on other continents is helping to expand our area of operation far beyond the borders of Austria and Germany.
